Poverty along with oppression prevalent in the ancient regime was responsible for the revolution in France. Do you agree?

Ans

France Revolution - The war fought by the French people for their rights such as Liberty, Equality and Fraternity during 18th and 19th Century.

1) Poverty as a Cause for France Revolution

The was under bank-rupt stage because of the ongoing wars.

- war with Prussia
- war with Austria

- also provide Army support to America

The govt. was facing financial crisis and imposed highly taxes on third estate people.

There was also a food shortage due to less production which result in the high price of staple food.

The highly imposition of tax made anger the people, Commoners which result into outbreak of this revolution

2. Oppression as Cause -

- The absolute Monarchy system and the policy of Divine rights was challenged by people
- The taxes such as tithe tax & taille or many more were exploiting the peasants. They spent their eighty percent of earning on tax.
- These oppressive rules challenged by the Commoners and in this philosopher played important role
 - Voltaire - criticise the Religious privileges
 - Rousseau given "Social Contract"
 - Montesquieu given the spirit of law

Conclusion, The French people had fought for their rights and become independent from Monarchy government or feudal lords. They provided the path to all, to know their rights and live peaceful and uncriminative life. The Concept of Equality, Fraternity and liberty spreaded all over the world.
